The Problem

Students and busy individuals often forget what food they have at home, causing groceries to expire and money to be wasted because there is no simple way to track pantry items, shopping lists, and meal plans in one app.

- Recipes, pantry stock, and shopping lists are often disconnected.
- People forget what they already have.
- Shopping and meal decisions take unnecessary time.

Technology Used

- Frontend: Flutter and Dart
- Backend: Hive and Supabase
- API: Spoonacular
- Web Deployment: GitHub

Challenges

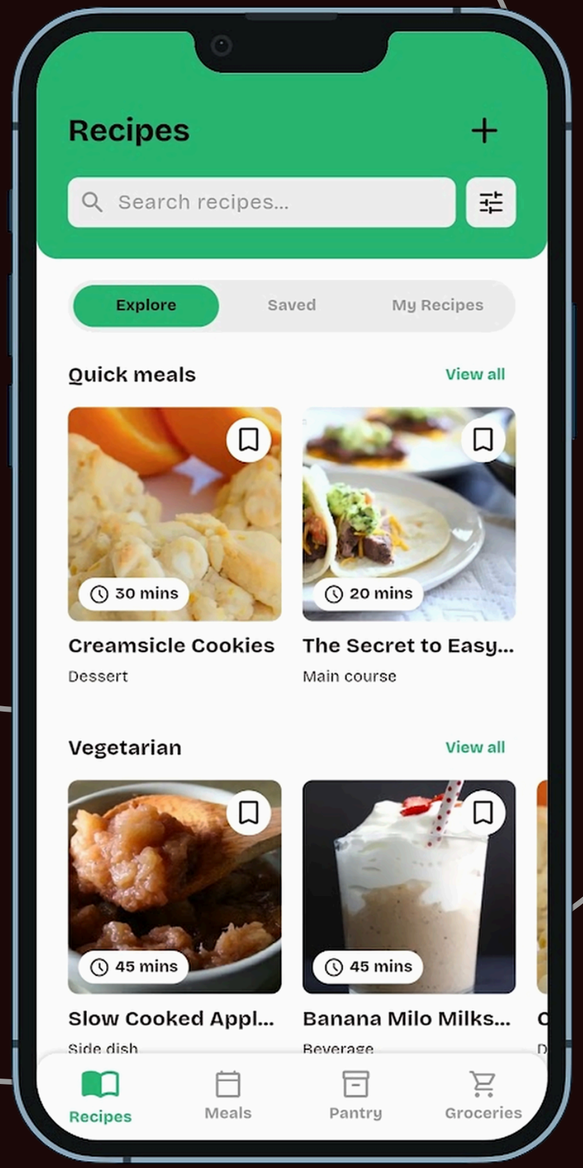

Local-first data had to stay consistent across different screens.

Grocery transfers affect two connected lists.

Spoonacular and auth responses were not always reliable.

AI-generated ideas needed review, testing, and specific adaptation.

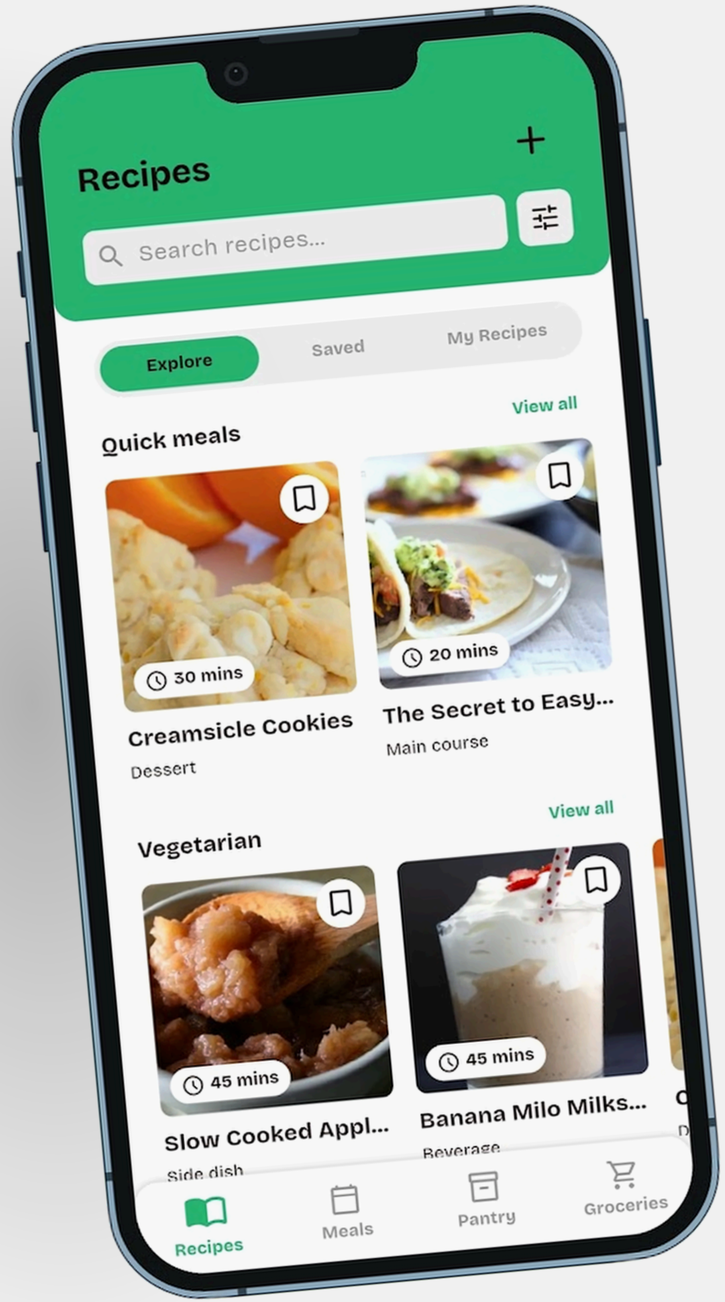

API data needed conversion to fit the app’s local recipe and time models.

What is Next

- Improve duplicate and edge-case validation
- Strengthen conflict resolution across devices
- Add clearer feedback for sync and service errors
